February 2010

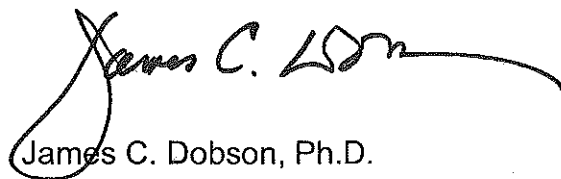

Dear Friends:

As you know, I do not make many endorsements of political candidates. However, with the stakes so high in the 2010 elections, I believe it is imperative that we elect leaders who fight for the policies and principles that promote strong family values. That is why I am endorsing Rick Perry in his re-election bid for Governor of Texas.

Over the years, Gov. Perry has established a record that is consistently pro-life, pro-marriage and pro-religious liberty. He has demonstrated his deep regard for the sanctity of life by signing more pro-life bills into law than any other governor in Texas history. He demonstrated his support for the God-given institution of marriage by strongly supporting the Texas Marriage Amendment. And he has helped lead the effort to establish the strongest protections for religious liberty in the state of Texas. No other candidate in this race measures up to the high standards established by Gov. Perry on these critical issues of our day.

Please know that I am speaking only for myself, and not as a representative of the organizations I lead. That being said, I am asking you to support Rick Perry in his re-election campaign for Governor of Texas.

Sincerely,
